SCARING WILD INDIANS.

Roman Candles Found to Be Mare Effective Wespons Than Riffes.

"One of my adventures, eh?" said the book agent to a reporter of the Omaha Herald. "Well, about eight years ago I carried a pack of novelies such as you frequently see exhibited on the street corners, and presided over by a sunburned Italian. With another man and a young fellow of eighteen I traveled through Kansas to the Colorado line, selling and trading our wares to the Indians for any thing marketable in the cities. About the time of our arrival in the western part of Kansas the memorable Indian outbreak was terrorizing the country. From the south and west came reports of the terrible outrages perpetrated by the Indians and greasers. Houses were burned, the inmates were killed instantly or tortured to death, and all the cattle were driven off and scattered. You may be sure I felt considerable solicitude concerning the aafetys of my little party and took extra precautions to find secluded spots when camping. Of course, under the conditions, I deemed it advisable to get out of the neighborhood immediately. To do so we found it necessary to pass through the country most likely to be infested with straggling bands of Indians. Despite the risks we determined to make the attempt. After a long, hard day's tramp we encamped for the night in one of those small canyons so prevalent in Western Kansas. It was an excellent place, too. Our backs were effectually protected by a natural cave in the side of the bank, the entrance to which was concealed by brush and tall grass. Sam, the boy of the party, was an cave in the side of the bank, the entrance to which was concealed by brush and tall grass. Sam, the boy of the party, was an unusually bright young fellow and very familiar with the tactics of Indian warfare. Just before lying down I noticed him untying a good-sized bundle of sticks resembling sbort broom-handles. He placed them within easy reach and fumbled down to sleep. I had noticed him fumbling around the bushes a short time before, but didn't paymuch attention to his actions. The other fellow and myself concluded not to set a guard, as we were in such an excellent place. I don't know how long we had slept when we were awakened by Sam shaking us slightly and whispering:

us slightly and whispering: "Be quick, now, the Indians are getting ready to slip in on us."
"By this time we were both wide awake and ready with our rifles.

"'Listen,' whispered Sam; 'hear the dirty scamps speaking up. Put down the rifles. I've got something better.' "He handed us each four of the sticks

mentioned, remarking:

"'Them's Roman candles. I've got a pile of whoppers along, and I think we can scare these scamps clean out o' their hides.'

"I caught the idea in a moment and strained my ears to listen for further demonstrations from the attacking carty. We strained my ears to listen for further demonstrations from the attacking party. We could hear them creeping here and there through the bushes, scarcely making a noise, but easily distinguished in the silence of the night.

"'Now,' whispered Sam, 'take two in each hand and I'll light them."

"Suiting the action to the word he contrived to light them in rapid succession. Then he turned them into the bushes and heavens! what a sight was revealed as the candles flashed. About fifty villainous-looking savages and greasers were stooping and creeping towards us. At the first flash they stopped as if spell-bound. We turned them so the green and white balls would strike them in their faces. The candles were tremendous affairs and eight or ten of them popping away independent of human aid was enough to terrorize any one. Our assailants wavered a moment, then with a terrible yell bounded away toward high ground as if the devil himself was in pursuit. We could hear them scrambling up the hillside, mount their horses and gallop away. Sam afterward explained that he had brought the candles along as a side speculation, and he also explained that he had array and a system of along as a side speculation, and he also ex-plained that he had arranged a system of plained that he had arranged a system of strings among the bushes so that no one could approach very close without meeting the obstruction and alarming him. It is needless to state that we reached safe ground in due time without further moles-

PATERNAL GOVERNMENT.

How the Early Settlers of Com-Managed Their Affairs. Managed Their Affairs.

The early settlers of Connecticut lived under a paternal Government. The General Court of each colony, says the Fath's Companion, granted land to a company of persons who wished to "plant" a new town, and authorized them to establish a "plantation" and a church. The court looked after all matters that pertained to the welfare of the colony. One year it ordered that every householder who kept a mean should plant one spoonful of English hemp-seed. The next year one rood of hemp or flax was to be sown.

On complaint being made that some persons could not procure hemp-seed, the court ordered that any family naving more than a spoonful of seed, and refusing to sell it, must plant it. The object of the court was to secure material for the making of "linen"

The court ordered the constables to keep a watchful eye upon individuals whose apparel exceeded their rank, and to arrest any person who demanded an excritiant price for the article he offered for sale.

When labor troubles arose the court made out a schedule of wages, and an-nounced the number of hours which should constitute a working day. From March 10 constitute a working day. From March to October 11 twenty pence, and no more, might be asked for a day's work by carpenters, plow-wrights, wheelwrights, masons, joiners, smiths and coopera. During the rest of the year they could not ask above eighteen pence. Eleven hours in summer and nine in winter constituted a working

The penalty for giving or taking larger wages than those mentioned in the schedule was the "censure of the court," which had the power of making its censure felt on the person of the offenders. It could order them "to be whipt at a cart's tail" upon some public day, or "to stand upon the pilors."

The necessities of a new colony compelled the solonists to adopt principles and measures which, two hundred years later, are advocated by those known as German Socialists. The New Haven colony anticipated the modern idea favored by certain thinkers. It sought to restrict the eagurness of the colonists for acquisition of land by taxing upland and meadow at fcur pence an acre, and inferior land at two pence It allowed no sales to outsiders without the approval of the General Court, and it reserved to her commonwealth all common lands and "claypita."

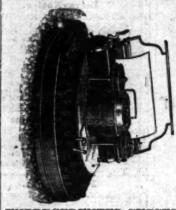

Plows are now made without handles, and the plow-boy has only to sit above a pair of wheels and drives across the field to turn up the earth. The dairy maid will be next to go. A force pump will be attached to a cow, a rubber tube run to a vai and away goes the milk like a months.

GEN. HARRISON is remarkably like Gen. Grant in one conspicuous character at least, namely, in his ability to keep silent. The old soldier was fond of quoting the saying of Socrates that the Gods have given man one mouth and two ears as a hint to him to listen twice as much as he talked. The Idaho Statesman says: The President-elect, who is a courteous Amcan, turns an attentive ear to both sides of every question, hears what Arabs of Eastern Africa Conevery mar, who has a claim on his time and attention, has to say, but like Uncle Remus' Br'er Rabbit "he says nuthin." His silence s'iould not be construed into boorishness on his part. It is in every way commendable. Cleveland is still President, and it would be unseemly in Gen. Harrison to be in haste to announce the names of jollification to be held in the White House after March 4th, before the funeral procession, which is preparing to start from that building, is fairly out of sight around the corner.

ances made by President-elect Harrison recently in regard to the woman movement, and they are predicting that the new administration will encourage the appointment of women to places in the departments, to postoffices and to and to other places new held almost exclusively by men. Mrs. Harrison herself favors the pecuniary independe ce of her sex quite as much as she does temperance, woman's suffrage and other greatly pleased with some utter ance, woman's suffrage and other reforms.

Congress'onal Proceedings.

After the transaction of unimportant business, the House resumed the con-sideration of the Territorial bills. McDonald of Minnesota, thought all territories referred to in the Omnibus bill were ready for admission.

Adams of Illinois, characterized the Omnibus bill as a transparent subter fuge; that the innert people of the territories would not obtain a single substantial advantage under it, which they could not obtain if not passed, while the defeat of the Senate bill would have the parctical effect of continuing one year of outrage on the people of Dakota.

The debate on the Dakota admission bill was finished this afternoon, and the bill read for amendment, After several amendments of minor importance had been adopted. Springer

The Senate resumed the considera-tion of the tariff bill, the pending ques-tion being the amendments to the tin plate paragraph. The discussion was continued by Allison and Vest. The argument was carried on at

The argument was carried on at great length. On behalf of the Republicans, the argument was made that there is an abundance of tin in Dakota and other parts of the country, and that an increased duty on tin plate would develop the tin mines and a remunerative tin plate industry. On behalf of the Democrats, it was argued that the proposed increase of duty on tin plate, for the purpose of establishing a non-existent industry, was dangerous, exceptional legislation, carrying protection to an extreme never before contemplated by judicious

Sherman argued in favor of the amendment, not so much as a matter of protection of tin as of iron and steel plate industry. Of 283,000 tons of tin plate annually imported, fully 275,000 tons consisted of iron and steel, the remaining eight tons only, being tin Allison said the present duty is about 33 per cent., and the proposed duty is about 70 per cent. The debate was further continued by Saulsbury, Plumb, Gorman, Aldrich, Call and Mitchell. Finally the amend-ment was adopted. An additional amendment proposing a bounty on sugar made from beets, sorghum or sugar cane grown in the United States, was then taken up.

A Marked Disagreement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 .- This moraing the Senate sub-Committee on finance, in charge of the tariff bill, growers wanted additional duties Their views at times, were widely divergent and were expressed with much vigor, but as far as learned their arguments made no change in their arguments made no the minds of the committee.

LEAVITT'S NOVELTIES

To be in Reno on the Twenty Third Instant. The San Francisco Call of December 25, 1888, said: M. B. Leavitt's European Novelties was the attraction at the Bush Street Theater last evening. There was a crowded house, and a good performment to those who were formulate mough to be in attendance. It would enough to be in attendance. It would be impossible to particularize, as each performer or team is a star in its place, and has been selected for that reason. The ventriloquist, Duncan, pleased beyond measure, his quaint saying and imitations being received with roars of laughter and applause. The Milton sisters are good vocalists and excellent dancers, their song and dance being a novelty in its way. The Pylades in their representation of prominent personages are wonderful, their make-up being done with so their make-up being done with so much agility as to create wonder at how a change in face and figure can b- accomplished in so short a space of time. The remainder of the artists are performers of a high order of merit, each giving general satisfaction. The appecialty company will be a good card for Manager Leavitt during the next two weeks.

THE LEGISLATURE.

CARSON CITY, January 15.

En. GAZETTE.-Monday the opening of the second week brought the mem bers into their respective houses with days of rest, had been of great benefit to them after the first week of hard legislative work. Both houses settled down to good work this week and a goodly amount of business has been transacted thus far. The acquaintance gained by the association of members and clerks is at once pleasant and has a tendency to facilitate the business of the Legislature, and the care taken and promptness in action, promises that this session will be of considerable importance and benefit to our State.

LEGISLATION. A number of bills have been introduced in both houses, and the following is a review of the important

Senate Bill, No. 7, amends the Act relative to re-districting the State of Nevada, and provides for the salaries for District Judges, and the appointment of a Judge to reside in Pioche, Lincoln County, and provides for four instead of three as now. The salaries are apportioned accordingly among the several counties, the bill to take effect immediately after its passage.

Senate Bill, No. 9, provides for the decent interment of any ex-Union soldiers, sailors or marines, who may hereafter die without having aufficient means to defray expenses, also directs the payment of thecost of interment and the proper marking of the grave. Senate Bill, No. 10, provides for the qualifications of District Attorneys of the several counties in the State.

Senate Bill, No. 12, provides for the holding of a special election to be held on the 11th day of February, 1880, for the purpose of submitting to the voters all proposed.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION. Giving the forms of proclamation, ballots, etc.

Assembly bill No. 5, if passed, re peals the act requiring partners trans-acting business in the State to file certificates of partnership.

Assembly bill No. 6 provides for the consolidation of certain county officers, viz: In counties where the vote was at the last election not less than 900 or more than 1,350 votes for member of Congress, the Sheriff shall act as ex-officio Assessor, the County Clerk as ex-officio County Treasurer and the County Recorder as ex-officio Auditor;

also provides for the salaries, fees and the employment and pay of deputies. Assembly bill No. 7 provides for the ounishment of any one who takes a male under the age of eighteen years r the purpose of prostitution, or for the purpose of marriage, without the consent of father, mother or guardian; enveighs or entices an unmarried fe-male of chaste character into a house of ill-fame, assignation or elsewhere, for the purpose of prostitution, takes or detains a woman for such purpose Provision is made for rape by force, drugs or in any manner against consent; also provides for the punishment, fine and imprisonment. Assembly bill No. 13 is an act to exempt certain persons from serving as trial jurors, making the age at 65 years. Assembly bill No. 17 is an act au-thorizing and requiring the State Land Register to sel ect 40,000 acres of the public lands within the State of Nevada for Washoe county, fixing the price thereof at ten cents and the fee for the benefit of water storage and ir rigating purposes in Washoe county.

Assembly bill No. 18 authorizes the Board of Commissioners of Washoe county to provide for the storage and DISTRIBUTION OF WATER, The issuance and redemption of bonds for the payment thereof, placing the figures at $100,000, bonds to run for 30 years, interest at 4 per cent. per annum. The bill also provides for the purchase of water rights, sites for reservoirs, dams, etc., also for levying a tax each year sufficient for the payment of the interest, the taking up of the bonds, the ascertaining of the number of irrigating ditches in the county, and providing for the collec tion of water dues, rents, etc. It is as yet too early to arrive at any expres-sion as regards the last two measures, as they have just been introduced, and as they have just been introduced, and opinions have not been arrived at. A joint resolution passed at the last session, relative to amending the constitution concerning lotteries, and by some oversight was not properly recorded, and consequently could not become a law, was again introduced vesterday and read first time and referred to Judiciary Committee. KILLED BY TOBACCO.

1 Mosstrous Shark That Chewed a Quid with Disastrous Results. In a short while we had caught a nice mess of small snappers, from ten to twenty inches long, and were having a real good time, writes a correspondent of Garden and Strum. We had not fished very long, however, before a large shark put in an appearance and spoiled our sport. We first knew of his presence by his greedily snapping off the fish from one of my neighbors' lines, having followed it up from the bottom. He executed this performance several times, and then the snappers stopped biting entirely. Not even a nibble could we get, so we hauled in our lines and commenced to pay hauled in our lines and commenced to pay attention to the shark. He was a monstrous attention to the shark. He was a monstrous fellow, about fifteen feet long, and he kept swimming round and round the vessel, sometimes on top the water and sometimes away down deep below us, but always at a respectful distance. His reddish brown body could be plainly seen through the clear transparent green water, and you may be sure he was the cynosure of all eyes. A great many plans for his capture were discussed, but none appeared practicable withgreat many plans for his capture were dis-cussed, but none appeared practicable with-in our limited means. The engineer sug-gested that if the shark would give him time, he would forge a proper hook and chain, but as the shark was unable to give him a guarantee he abandoned the project. While we were thus talking I noticed the native pilot every now and then throwing overboard one of the snappers we had so recently eaught. And as the current car-ried it a little distance clear of the vessel the shark would gobble it down, and, in fact, the intervals were so regular that Mr.

Shark seemed impatient when the regular-ity was broken by a little delay. We saw that our pilot had some ultimate object in view, and it drew our attention to him. I had not particularly noticed the man before credit for it, and, although he did not say much, he went about it in a very earnest manner. After having thrown over ten small fish he selected another a little larger than the others, and with a stick of wood rammed a roll of chewing tobacco nearly as large as a man's hand down into its belly and pressed its throat together again. He held it ready to throw, and as the shark came up, anxiously looking for its fish, he tossed it to him, and as it barely touched the water the shark turned over on its back and sucked it in. The shark then on its back and sucked it in. The shark then swam off as usual to the side of the vessel and then below us, and was apparently rising again in the expectation of another fish when the nicotine commenced its work. His struggles and contortions were hor-rible to behold as he darted here and there in a blind rage and veniting blood, but as he swam, or was carried by the current away from us, his struggles grew grad-ually less, until it ceased attogether. The tobacco had killed him.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH.

Native-Born Americans Who Cling to the Customs of Their Fathers.

It is not generally known, even by people who have visited America, that there is in Penusylvania, very near the cities of Phila-delphia and New York, 'a population of more than two million inhabitants which is more than two million inhabitants which is in many respects strangely like what its rural ancestors were in Germany more than two centuries ago. Some years since, says the Boston Transcript, there were to be seen in a shop in Philadelphia several large books of Lutheran devotion, in the type and spelling of 1540, bound in deeply-stamped white veilum, with heavy brass clasps. They did not look like imitations of old books, they seemed to be "the thing itself:" but the date seemed to be "the thing itself;" but the date was recent. "They are for the Pennsylva-nia Dutch," said the bookseller. "They would not believe that the Lord would hear would not believe that the Lord would near them if they prayed to Him out of a modern book. And those books, as you see them, have been printed and bound in that style for nearly two hundred years for the Penn-sylvania Dutch market, just as they were printed for their ancestors during the Reformation."

There is probably no more striking in-stance of conservatism to be found anywhere in Europe than this; but the spirit carried out by them consistently in every thing else. "Follow thy father, good son, and live as thy father before thee has done," is their golden rule of life. Firstly, they always speak among themselves a singular patois called Pennsylvania Dutch, from the word Deutsch. "It belongs," says Dr. Bausman, in his edition of the poems of Dr. H. Harbaugh, "to the South Germans dialects," and, while partaking of all, "it is most closely allied to the Pfalzisch"—that is, to the Rhine German of the Palatinate. is, to the Rhine German of the Palatinate. In the valley of the Susquehanna, and beyond the Alleghany, it is much mingled with English. Farther in the west we find in it traces of Scottish, Irish, Swedish and French. It is specially remarkable in its having retained great numbers of old and curious German words, such as are now to be heard only in the remotest places of the Fatherland. We find the influence of the unchangeable English article the in der. Thus a man will say: "Hen—scherr der blind Gaul uf, mer welle uf der markt fahre"—L. e.: "Henry, harness the blind horse; we will go to market!"

GRACEFUL WALKING.

An Art Understood by Few and Practice by a Still Smaller Number.

by a still smaller Number.

Did you ever have an opportunity to observe carefully the walk or gait of a large number of people! asks a writer in the St. Louis Republic. There are gaits and gaits, yot how few really know how to walk. This luck of grace is especially noticeable in the feminine portion of the crowd. To be sure the ladies have a great deal to contend with during the present mode of dress. What with tight lacing, big bustles, extenders and pointed-toed, high-heeled Oxford ties, it is a hard matter for them to manage to sustain their equilibrium even. Now, men have nothing of all this to cope with. They need not wear the above-mentioned articles and still be in style. That little five-lettered word! How many have died martyrs to it!

Naturally the first thing to be considered.

little five-lettered word! How many have died martyrs to it!

Naturally the first thing to be considered is the dress. To begin with the shoes: They must neither be too long nor too short, too wide nor too narrow, too light nor too heavy. They must be just right. Your feet will be blistered allike if your shoes are too heavy or too light. Have a medium-weight, flexible, broad-heeled shoe. It depends entirely on the shape of the foot whother the heel should be high or low. A medium high broad heel is the best, I think. Now for the walk. Throw your shoulders well back; bold your head up, with your chin drawn in; throw your whole body from the hips up slightly forward. Now step out, moving the legs from the hips with the slightest possible bend in the knee, to prevent a stiff-legged appearance. Take steps of moderate length, with the toes turned out. When walking, the best position for the arm is to I t it hang easily at the side. Do not swing them, but do not hold them perfectly stiff.

Rat-Catching in London.

The trade of rat-catching in the basements and sewers of London is a flourishing one. The skins of captured rodents are sold to giove manufacturers, and there is a dreadful auspicton affort that the flesh is served up in cheap ragouts and plea.

MARVELOUS MEMORIES. What Men May Po Who Assiduously Cul-tivate Their Memories.

What Men May Po Who Assistancesty Cultivate Their Memories.

Mr. Stanton, the United States Wer Minister during the great civil war, had a very retentive memory, and was especially well up in Dickens' works. One evening, says a swriter in Welcome, in the early part of 1868, Dickens, then on a reading tour in the States, was dining with Charles Summer when Mr. Stanton and some others were present. The War Minister was put to the test, and when started could repeat from memory a chapter of any of Dickens' books, showing a much greater knowledge of the works than their author could boast. Mr. Stanton accounted for this intimate knowledge of Dickens by mentioning the habit which he had formed during the war of invariably reading something by the author of "Pickwick" before going to bed at night. The late Bishop Prince Lee, first Bishop of Manchester, was similarly gifted. It is related of him that being once, at an evening party, started by a lady with a line quoted from "Marmion," he went right on with the poem from memory, and could have recited the whole. As a further test, the same lady quoted a few words from a conversation in "Ivanhoe," whereupon the Bishop repeated the whole chapter correctly from memory. But greater than any of these was Lord Macaulay. From a very early age the retentiveness of his memory was extraordinary. any of these was Lord Macaulay. From a very early age the retentiveness of his memory was extraordinary. When only three or four years of age his mind mechanically retained the form of what he read so that, as his maid said, he talked "quite printed words." Once as a child, when making an afternoon call with his father, he picked up Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel" for the first time, and quietly deverged the treasure. first time, and quietly devoured the treasur while his seniors were engaged in conversa while his seniors were engaged in conversa-tion. When they returned home the boy went to his mother, who at the time was confined to her bed, and sitting down at the bedside repeated what he had been reading, by the canto, until she was tired. Later in life his wonderful memory was always a subject of interest to his friends, and occasubject of interest to his friends, and occa-sionally was put to searching tests. One day at a board meeting at the British Museum Macaulay wrote down from memory in three parallel columns on each of four pages of foolscap a complete list of the Cam-bridge senior wranglers, with dates and col-leges attached, for the one hundred years leges attached, for the one hundred years during which a record of the names had been kept in the University calendar. "On another occasion," says Trevelyan, "Sir David Dundas asked: 'Macaulay, do you know your Popes!' 'No,' was the answer, 'I always get wrong among the Innocenta.' 'But, can you say your Archbishops of Canterbury!' 'Any fool,' said Macaulay, 'could say his Archbishops of Canterbury backward,' and he went off at score, drawing breath only once in order to remark on the oddity of their having been both an Archbishop Sancroft and an Archbishop Bancroft, eddity of their having been both an Arch-bishop Sancroft and an Archbishop Bancroft, until Sir David stopped him at Cranmer."

Macaulay once said that if, by any possible chance, all the copies of "Paradise Lost" and the "Pilgrim's Progress" in existence were destroyed, he could write both out again, complete, from recollection. When O'Connell made his motion in 1834 for the repeal of the union, Mr. Tennant, member of Parliament for Belfast, delivered a speech lasting for three and a half hours, full of figlasting for three and a half hours, full of figlasting for three and a hair hours, full of agures and calculations, entirely from memory, in which he trusted so completely that, he sent the manuscript of his speech to the newspapers before he delivered it. His confidence was not misplaced, for the oration was spoken without a single mistake, or even a momentary hesitation. Another Irish M. P., Mr. Robert Dillon Brown, member for Marco hed the same useful figulity. Irish M. P., Mr. Robert Dillon Brown, member for Mayo, had the same useful faculty. He would dictate a speech to an amanuensis, and twenty-four hours afterwards, without looking at it or thinking of the matter in the meantime, could repeat it word for word. Woodfall, editor of the Morning Chronick and heather of Junius, publisher. Chronicle, and brother of Junius' publisher was able to report accurately in the morn-ing the debate of the previous evening with-out taking any notes. In some cases the mental action involved in feats of this nature would seem to be quite mechanical and unintelligent. In the newspapers of Janunintelligent. In the newspapers of January, 1820, there are accounts of an extraordinary man, who was known as "Memory-corner Thompson." This man, although he could hardly remember any thing he heard, could yet retain perfectly the names and descriptions of large collections of objects that met his eye. He could take an inventory of the contents of a house from cellar to attie merely by surveying them, and could merely by surveying them, and could afterward write it out from memward write it out from mem-He could draw from recollection accurate plans of many Lon-don parishes and districts, with every street, alley, public building, public house, stc., duly noted, down to the minutest topographical detail, such as pumps, trees, bow-windows and posts, all correctly marked. Conspicuous instances of this mechanical kind of memory are to be found among the famous mental calculators. Jedediah Buxton was a celebrity of this kind about the middle of the last century. He had but little education and, indeed, was not able to write his own name. But in arithmetic and in abstruse calculations his arithmetic and in abstruse calculations his powers were wonderful. The following is a specimen of the problems which, when put to the test, he solved mentally in a few minutes: Find how many cubical eighths of minutes: Find now many cuoical eightus of an inch there are in a quadrangular mass measuring 23.145,789 yards long, 2,642,732 yards wide and 54,965 yards thick. When in London in 1754 he was taken to see Garrick as Richard III. at Drury Lane. The play did not interest him, but he occupied himself in reckoning the number of words he heart and in counting the number of himself in reckoning the number of words he heard and in counting the number of steps made by the dancers. The American boy, Zerah Colburn, who came to London in 1813, was a similar phenomenon. He had no knowledge of the rules of arithmetic, and was quite unable to explain how he ar-rived at the answers to the problems sub-mitted to hm. Mental power of this nat-ure would seem to imply an unwholesome development of one part of the brain at the
